RADICAL MASS MEETING.-Two "mutual admirationists,"members of the present Congress, audience last night in Lyceum Hall, with what would have been ridiculous-had not the baneful motives that prompted them been so apparent-accounts of the roles they had respectively filled in the proceedings of the august body in which they are shining lights. The oratory and rhetoric displayed in the rendition of these accounts was, to a majority of those present, entirely unexceptionable, and abounded in such euphemistic epithets as liar and drunkard, applied to the President of the United States; worse to Generals McClellan, Halleck and other officers of the United States army; and "white trash" to the poor people of the South. Expressions of heartfelt regret were indulged in by these progressive humanitarians because some of the most respected gentlemen in the South had not been "scorehed," had cheated hemp of its hold around their "infernal necks," or had not, by one of the various processes now in use, been compelled to "go up," since peace was declared. However, every bitter has its sweet, and the injured feelings of the speakers were sensibly assuaged by the remembrance of the amount of "day light" of the Confederates during the war. Both the gentlemen, too, are partial optimists, and, according to their prohecies, the effulgence now nate the world, and the measures instituted by themselves--among them the resolution iniroduced yesterday morning in the House feited the lands granted to the South in 1856 for railroad purposes-the grand panacea for all the ills of an unfortunate country; - and if the South did not submit to the power of radiarms, Congress would strike yet desper in its present love generating work, and after that the rise of Virginia and her sister States would totally eclipse that of the fabled Phonix, and the monarchs of Europe would all be attacked with violent agues! The meeting adjourned

"BROUGHT UP WITH A ROUND TURN."-Ms. Julian, one of the Radical leaders in the House of Representatives, (who "came down" last night, to enlighten the colored voters of this benighted region, and whose low flings at the Chief Magistrate of the United States, while they may have made the thoughtless laugh, must have brought a blush of shame to Steuart, President, in the Chair. His name is Munsey, and he is a member of the Baltimore Conferthe stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio ence, we believe, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He has not been long at his Canal Company was held at Annapolis yestercalling, and was an unlettered man in humble day. After several hours discussion, a resolulife, but comparatively a few years back, tion was passed to adjourn to Friday next, when his talent was revealed to a friend, who when a vote will be taken on the acceptance aided him to the short culture with which he or rejection of the act of 1867, chapter 359, is producing such wonderful effect. His power | directing the Maryland board of public works of oratory is said to be great, and his to vote the stock of the State for a president reasoning faculties no less so. People here and four directors of the Chesapeake and Ohio and in the Valley flock to hear him, and his Canal Company, upon the nomination of the influence is talked of and felt everywhere. I preferred bondholders of said Company. The could not gain a seat in the church in which opinions of C. J. M. Gwinn and of I. GEORGETOWN AGAINST THE AQUEDUCT .-The furor against the Aqueduct increases in Georgetown. We copy, for the information of our readers, the "sayings and doings" on the subject in the Georgetown Councils, as given by the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun:

"The Aqueduct and Alexandria Canal occuied the attention of the Georgetown councils that had been admitted into the opake bodies last night, in informal joint session. It was again declared that the Georgetown people had | been "asleep" and "betrayed," etc., when they allowed the aqueduct to be built, and that it must not be suffered to be rebuilt or repairradiating from the Capitol would illumi- ed. Mr. Wills made a long speech against the lessees of the Alexandria canal, and asserted that it cost more to get coal through it to Alexandria than by means of tugboats on the Potomac river: that the canal had been leased of Representatives by Mr. Julian, declaring for- to a band of speculators who had not the interests of either of the cities at heart; that the the National Yacht Club of Washington. trade would eventually go to Baltimore, and arrangements were now being made with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company .-Baltimore wants to keep the trade they have, cal ideas, as it had done to that of Northern and their object was to get possession of those piers for railroad purposes. Now, if these piers were worth $20,000, the Alexandria canal only got $1,000 a year for them, and this shows the value of that canal. They cannot put a railroad bridge there without the legislation of Congress, and it was for this community to see that no bridge goes there without the proper draws. After further debate, the informal session was dissolved, and each branch adopted a resolution appropriating - dollars and appointing standing committees to aid in securing the removal of the aqueduct."
